The one high priest

By WILLIAM L. TRIMYER
The One High Priest
Lesson for May 17, 1981
Bible Study Passage: Hebrews 4:14-5:10
Introduction

The term "priest" is generally not used within Protestant circles except in reference to the Old Testament concept of priest or to those who serve within the Catholic tradition. The notion that all Christians are "priests" is basically foreign to our way of thinking. It is almost equally as strange for us to think of Christ as a priest.

But if we remember that one of the priestly functions is to hear confession, it may become easier for us to see Christ as the "great high priest." Christ opened the way for all people to approach God through personal prayer and meditation. He likewise acts as a priest to us whenever we unbear our souls to him, sharing our pain and sin so as to receive forgiveness and direction.

We can be "priests" to one another each time we pause to listen to each other's burdens. But there are burdens and secret sins which we feel only God himself can hear and forgive. Christ, too, acts as our priest whenever we speak to God in prayer.

Help Through Christ [Hebrews 4:14-16]

Christ qualifies as our great high priest because he entered the most holy of holies and occupies divine authority and power. Furthermore, Christ qualifies to act as our priest because of his identification with us. He is not a "remote star" in some far away galaxy, but an ever present Lord who knows our pain and struggles with temptation.

Christ entered the human battlefield and experienced fully the temptation to choose the easy road over the rough one. Through his incarnation, Jesus faced the enemy of temptation and won. Thus, he enters into battle with us each time we are tempted to choose the path of least resistance.

Because of Christ and his work of grace, we may come to him in prayer and unburden our hearts and experience his mercy and grace in time of need.

The Qualities Of A Good Priest [Hebrews 5:1-4]

A priest is not one who has attained spiritual and moral perfection. The early Levitical priests were men who confessed their sins, as well as the sins of the people. They were men whose compassion enabled them to be sympathetic with the struggles of the people. It is not a matter of the blind leading the blind, but the priest is one whose encounter with Christ has given them vision to pass along to other weary pilgrims.

Any minister worth his salt must recognize that the role they fill is of God's choosing. God calls some to become spiritual leaders to help guide those who are broken and struggling to see. The clergy are not to be seen as persons who have attained some spiritual or moral perfection; they are God's people whose sympathy and integrity qualifies them to point others to the Christ who forgives and restores sight to those whose moral and spiritual vision is blurred.

The Qualities Of The One High Priest [Hebrews 5:5-10]

Jesus came as a minister to the people rather than as an object of the people's ministry. Jesus was the epitome of humility and compassion and never spent a lot of time navel grazing. He was outerdirected in his life and mission; he had a mission to fulfill and did so with calm intentionality.

The secret behind Jesus' quiet, trusting attitude was in God's appointments of him as the "priest" of the higher order. He did not descend from any particular priesthood or follow in the traditions of those priests before him; he was God's annointed priest to the people.

Jesus was also a man of prayer. Time and again we see him move to a quiet garden or mountain to refresh his soul in communication with his heavenly Father.

Jesus was an obedient Son of the Father who endured the agonizing pain and humiliation of the cross. The uniqueness of Christ is that he not only acted as a priest on our behalf, but he was the supreme sacrifice which purchased our redemption and acceptance before God. Through Christ we are made free and whole and loved by the Father.

Dr. Trimyer is Chaplain at Burnham Hospital in Champaign, Illinois (WLTY).

'Moonies' to be examined

The film "Heavenly Deception" will be shown at Rocks Baptist Church May 24 starting at 7:30 p.m.

The film, a true story, is about a young man who while in college met a member of the Unification Church and became a member of that church, a "Moonie."

The film documents the young man's perception of and eventual disillusionment with the Unification Church.

The public is cordially invited to attend the film. The Rev. A. M. Taylor is pastor of Rocks Baptist Church.

Park entry free to the disabled

U. S. citizens who are physically disabled or blind are now entitled to free entry to all national park areas that charge an entrance fee.

Such permanently disabled persons will also receive a 50 percent discount on fees for recreation activities such as camping or boat launching.

These benefits are available under the new "Golden Access Passport," brought into existence by an amendment to the federal recreation fee schedule authorized by Congress in Public Law 96-344.

To qualify for the lifetime permit, a disabled or blind person must be eligible to receive federal benefits for his/her disability under such programs as: Disability Retirement (Office of Personnel Management); Compensation for Service-connected Disability (Veterans Administration); Pension for Non-service-connected Disability (Veterans Administration); Coal Mine Safety and Health Act (Department of Labor); Longshoreman's and Harbor Workers Compensation Act (Department of Labor); Federal Employees Compensation Act (Department of Labor); Defense Base Act (Department of Labor); Social Security Act Disability (Social Security Administration); Railroad Retirement Act, Total and Permanent Disability (Railroad Retirement Board) and Rehabilitation Act Vocational Services (Department of Education).

National park areas in the Mid-Atlantic Region that have entrance fees are Appomattox Court House National Historical Park, Colonial National Historical Park (Jamestown Island) and Shenandoah National Park, all in Virginia.

The new Golden Access permit is being issued as an appropriate time. The United Nations has designated 1981 as the "International Year of the Disabled."

Letter Helpers thanked

Letter to The Editor:

April 26, 1981 was McHappy Day at all Southwestern area McDonald Resturants, it was a big success. On behalf of my son, Denny, and other diabetics in the community I would like to thank the people who helped in many ways. Local individuals and groups were at McDonald's on Wards Road to help serve drinks and provide entertainment. Sheriff Gene Richardson, Lois Williams, Dot Davidson, Appomatox Varsity cheerleaders and Fellowship Four and Jackie. Several members of the Appomatox Junior Woman Club sold 50c coupons to be used that day. Juvenile Diabetes is a state project of all Junior Woman's Clubs in Virginia. Thanks also to the radio station WTTX for reminding people and the Times-Virginian for printing articles and news items about Juvenile Diabetes Foundation. An estimated $3,000 was raised that day for research to find a cure for diabeta.

Thanks to everyone.
